

World Storytelling Institute
presents

A Workshop on "Storytelling Therapy", also known as "Therapeutic Uses of Storytelling", and "Storytelling as a Healing Art"

Day: Friday 6 November 2015.

Time: 4pm to 6:30pm.

Venue: Children First, A 2/35, Safdarjung Enclave, New Delhi 110 029.

On Chaudhary Jhandu Singh Marg, near Africa Ave. www.childrenfirstindia.com

Workshop Description:

The time has come for Storytelling Therapy to take its place alongside Drama Therapy, Dance Therapy, Music Therapy, Visual Art Therapy, etc, as one of the Creative Arts Therapies (for people of all ages). Workshop Participants would experience a series of therapeutic/healing activities using stories from folklore, stories based on their personal-experiences, and stories they might create. Participants would, in an introductory way, be prepared to use storytelling therapeutically with others. This Workshop might be of interest especially to parents, therapists, teachers, trainers (soft skills, etc), and life coaches.

About the Workshop Trainer:

Dr Eric Miller is a native New Yorker, settled in Chennai. There he directs the World Storytelling Institute, and the Chennai Storytelling Festival. He has a PhD in Folklore, and is currently working toward an MSc in Psychology.

Eric's website: www.storytellingandvideoconferencing.com

The website of the NGO he directs: www.storytellinginstitute.org

A 4-page essay by Eric regarding "Storytelling Therapy" is at www.storytellinginstitute.org/64.pdf .

A description of Eric's general Storytelling Workshop is at www.tinyurl.com/storytellingworkshopinfo .

This Flier is online at www.storytellinginstitute.org/Delhi_Workshop.pdf .

The fee for this Workshop is Rs 700.

Please call or e-mail for additional information and to reserve a seat: 0 98403 94282, info@storytellinginstitute.org .

